Kunming University of Science and Technology(KUST), located in Kunming, Yunnan Province, southwestern China, was founded on the 4th of September, 1954. KUST has become a comprehensive, engineering-oriented university that combines theory with application and coordinates multiple disciplines. As one of the key universities in Yunnan province, KUST plays an important role in the field of the non-ferrous metals industry in China and makes major contributions to regional, economic, and social development. Based on its distinctive disciplines and unique location, KUST keeps strengthening international cooperation and communication. As of now, it has signed cooperation agreements with 110 colleges, universities, and research institutions in 36 countries and regions and built a Confucius Institute with Southwestern University in Laos. It is the leading university in the cooperation between universities in Yunnan province and Thailand and has set up 3 colleges in Thailand. It is listed as the new base for the Programme of Introducing Talents of Discipline to Universities. The foreign experts in KUST have won the International Science and Technology Cooperation Award and the Friendship Award issued by the Chinese government. Now it has played a unique and important role in cultivating engineers and talented managers, and offering international technical transfer for neighbouring countries, as well as establishing high-level cooperation on research and communication between teachers and students with developed countries.
